Analysis of the Ohio Beef Checkoff Program: Serious Abuses Show a Need for Reform

By Joe Maxwell and Angela Huffman

Issue

Ohio cattle producers are mandated by both state and federal laws to pay a fee to the government for every head of cattle they sell. Known as the Beef Checkoff Program, these mandatory fees are intended to be used for research and promotion of beef. The Ohio Beef Council, an agency of the Ohio Department of Agriculture, collects, administers, and expends these tax dollars.

The U.S. Supreme Court made clear that checkoff programs are activities and speech of the federal government, and therefore checkoff dollars are government funds rather than producer funds. Both Ohio state law and federal law prohibit these mandatory fees from being used to influence policy. But in Ohio, there is not adequate oversight of the collection, administration, or expenditure of these tax dollars. Without state appropriations or state audits, egregious abuses of these tax dollars are occurring.

The Ohio Beef Council contributes to the salaries and overhead costs of a trade and lobbying entity, Ohio Cattlemen's Association. Sharing expenses for these internal operations furthers the policy activity of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association. The Ohio Beef Council promotes and collects contributions to the Ohio Cattlemen's Association's Political Action Committee (PAC) to influence elections and legislation. Further, the Ohio Beef Council has directly contributed nearly $100,000 to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, a national trade and lobbying organization.

About the Beef Checkoff Program

The Beef Checkoff Program was established in the 1985 Farm Bill. The federal law, called the Beef Promotion and Research Act, mandates that every time a cattle producer sells a head of cattle, the producer is required to pay $1.00 to the qualified state beef council designated to collect the checkoff funds. In Ohio, the Ohio Beef Council is the state agency designated to collect the mandatory $1.00 fee. Half of each dollar paid by Ohio cattle producers pursuant to the federal law and collected by the state agency, Ohio Beef Council, is forwarded to the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board which oversees the national checkoff program, subject to U.S. Department of Agriculture review. The other half of the dollar is retained by the Ohio Beef Council, which is designated to expend the $0.50 retained federal checkoff funds. This $0.50 of the federal funds is to be administered by Ohio Beef Council pursuant to the 1985 Act and Ohio state law and used for a “program of research, producer and consumer information, and promotion to improve, maintain, and develop markets for cattle, beef, and beef products.”

In 2014, a state Beef Checkoff Program was adopted by a referendum voted on by producers who marketed cattle in Ohio in 2013, to include out-of-state beef interests and Ohio cattle producers. This referendum established an additional $1.00 mandated fee to be paid on each head of cattle sold in Ohio. As it does for the federally mandated $1.00 per head fee, the Ohio Beef Council collects and administers the additional state checkoff funds. This additional $1.00 per head is refundable if a cattle producer meets certain criteria and submits the proper paperwork, which is not available online. The Ohio Beef Council is controlled by an Operating Committee, which is appointed by the Ohio Director of Agriculture.

Checkoffs as Government Speech

The U.S. Supreme Court has clearly defined federal checkoff funds as mandatory payments for which the U.S. Department of Agriculture has full control. Further, the U.S. Supreme Court has acknowledged the U.S. Department of Agriculture has authority over every word of the program, making these checkoff funds “government speech” and not producer funds. Therefore, these funds should be treated as any other taxpayer funds.

Both Ohio state law and federal law have prohibitions against these mandatory fees being used to influence government or policy; rather, these funds are restricted for advancing research and promotion of the sale of beef. Further, both federal law and state law prohibit the funds from being used to pick winners and losers in the market. Ohio law states: “No operating committee shall use any assessments that it levies for any political or legislative purpose, or for preferential treatment of one person to the detriment of any other person affected by the marketing program."⁶ The specific wording of the Beef Promotion and Research Act of 1985 prohibits checkoff funds “from being used in any manner for the purpose of influencing governmental action or policy.”⁷

Violations of Ohio State and Federal Law

Use of Checkoff Funds to Influence Policy

In reviewing the structure of the Ohio Beef Council, it is evident that as a state agency, it is operating in conjunction with and on behalf of the Ohio Cattlemen's Association. The Ohio Cattlemen's Association is a trade organization that not only works to influence legislative policy, but also operates a PAC from which it works to influence political activity.⁸

The Ohio Beef Council and Ohio Cattlemen's Association share the same address and headquarters. (See Figure 1). The staff members of both organizations are exactly the same. (See Figure 2). Staff are being paid by both organizations. Without the checkoff funds supporting these salaries and offices, Ohio Cattlemen's Association would not be able to maintain this staff nor this headquarters.

According to the Ohio Cattlemen's Association PAC website and brochure, the Ohio Beef Council is the point of contact for providing information about the PAC and collecting its donations. In other words, an agency of the Ohio Department of Agriculture is raising money to support political candidates. (See Figure 3).

According to available Ohio Beef Council annual reports, between 2011 and 2016 at least $14,000 per year has been transferred directly from the Ohio Beef Council to the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA), a national trade and lobbying entity.⁹ NCBA membership represents less than 4% of U.S. cattle producers, and, since 1996, beef packers and processors have had a voice in NCBA's decision making. NCBA lobbies on a variety of pro-agribusiness, pro-globalization policies. Examples include lobbying against the Farmer Fair Practices Rules and Country of Origin Labeling for beef.

Beef checkoff tax dollars are clearly being used to build the positive brand identity of Ohio Cattlemen's Association, allowing Ohio Cattlemen's Association to promote the perception that it is the voice of Ohio's cattle producers. Ohio Cattlemen's Association uses this positive brand identification to lobby on behalf of meatpacking corporations and against the interests of independent cattle producers. A lobbying trade group supported by checkoff dollars giving preferential treatment to one type of cattle producer over another is clear violation of state statute. The Ohio Cattlemen's Association is a government-funded lobbying and political organization operating in violation of federal and state law.

Lack of Appropriations and Audits in Ohio

In Ohio, beef checkoff funds are being used in violation of both federal and state law. Despite the requirements of Ohio Revised Code 131.35 and an Ohio Supreme Court’s decision, the federal checkoff funds that the state agency, Ohio Beef Council, administer are not appropriated by the state legislature, nor are these funds audited by the state auditor. The only information available is from annual reports and financial statements that must be submitted, as required by state law. However, the available reports, prepared by the Ohio Beef Council itself, are extremely general in nature and do not provide detail on how funds have been expended nor who received expended funds.\(^\text{10}\)

Ineffectiveness of the Program

The beef checkoff program has not had the result that was hoped for by cattle producers. Information provided by the Beef Checkoff Program claiming over $11.00 return on every checkoff dollar collected is grossly misleading. While beef packers and retailers may be realizing a benefit, U.S. cattle producers are seeing a completely different result.

In the 1980s, the production, processing, and most of the market for U.S. agricultural production was domestic. In 1985, when the Beef Promotion and Research Act was passed, there were one million U.S. cattle producers and 34 million head of beef cattle.\(^\text{11}\) Due to consolidation and globalization of the beef industry, the largest meatpacking corporations now control 82% of the beef market, and today, there are only 700,000 U.S. cattle producers and 29 million beef cattle. According to the Buckeye Quality Beef Association, there were 17 federally-inspected slaughter plants in Columbus, Ohio in the 1950s and 1960s. Today, there isn’t one left in the state of Ohio that can process a semi-truck load of cattle (about 40 head). Meanwhile, the farmers’ share of the retail price of beef has continued to decline. From 2007 to 2016, cattle feeders lost on average as much as $73.11 per finished steer.\(^\text{12}\)

These economic outcomes for American cattle producers may be explained by the fact that during the passage of the 1985 Act, the words “U.S. beef” were removed from the law, allowing checkoff funds to be used to promote imported beef as well as U.S.-produced beef. However, because of the pervasive abuses outlined in this briefing paper, as well as those reported in other states and at the federal level, there is no way to determine if the checkoff program could bring about positive results for U.S. cattle producers.

Conclusion and Policy Recommendations

Based on the requirements of federal and state laws as applied to the facts set out above, the Organization for Competitive Markets and Ohio Farmers Union recommend the following policy changes and government actions:

- Federal and state checkoff funds should be paid directly to the appropriate federal or state treasury and then be audited by the corresponding federal or state auditing agency.
- The Ohio Department of Agriculture should immediately segregate all activity between the Ohio Beef Council and the Ohio Cattlemen’s Association. Policy should be established that clearly outlines:
  - No state employee should report to a lobbying entity office for work.
  - No state or federal funds should be used directly or indirectly to offset a lobbying entity’s overhead costs, to include office rent, equipment costs, salaries or any incidental costs incurred by the lobbying entity.
  - All government funds should be expended pursuant to state standard contracting processes.

The staff members of Ohio Beef Council and Ohio Cattlemen’s Association are exactly the same and carry the same job titles for both organizations.

Elizabeth Harsh
Executive Director
As Executive Director, Elizabeth directs and coordinates all activities of the Ohio Beef Council and the Ohio Cattlemen’s Association. She is responsible for compliance with the Beef Checkoff Act & Ohio Law for all OBC/OCA financial statements. Priorly, she supervised all OBC/OCA staff.

Camell Parrish
Director of Public Relations & Consumer Marketing
Camell's position focuses on developing and implementing checkoff-funded programs in the areas of consumer advertising, retail, foodservice, and nutrition. He also coordinates the Ohio Beef Expo junior show activities.

Ron Windmogl
Director of Accounting & Operations
Ron is responsible for all financial activities for the Ohio Beef Council, Ohio Cattlemen’s Association, Ohio Cattlemen Magazine and Ohio Cattlemen’s Foundation. He generates all monthly financial statements and assists in preparing the annual budget for each entity. Prior to the checkoff, he worked at TVA, Ohio and out-states, making deposits and responsible for the Board’s monthly checkbook updating reflecting Ohio Beef Council’s payments.

Stephanie Sindel
Director of Membership Services & Youth Programs
Stephanie coordinates all checkoff-funded programs including membership recruitment and retention programs, county affiliate services and recognition programs, and membership processing. She works with various businesses and organizations, and through her efforts, she has increased the Ohio Beef Checkoff’s market share.

Amber Shoemaker
Administrative Assistant & Youth Program Coordinator
Amber manages daily tasks around the office including meetings, scheduling and event registration. Processes memberships and assists directors in more of their duties, including writing and graphic design for both Ohio Cattlemen’s Association and Ohio Beef Council. She also assists Stephanie with the youth program and other association youth events and programs.

Lauren Corry
Director of Communications
Lauren is responsible for regular updates of the OBC and OCA websites and social media platforms. She also oversees design and graphic design for the Ohio Cattlemen and The Angus newspapers and other Ohio Beef Council and Ohio Cattlemen’s Association publications. Additionally, Lauren serves as the staff photographer and maintains media relations through press releases.

Emily Hanes
Project Manager
Emily coordinates event planning and organizational programs for the Ohio Beef Council and Ohio Cattlemen’s Association. She also serves as the event coordinator for Ohio cattle sales and checkoff committee. Emily also serves as a staff photographer and supporting graphic designer.
